

Arashiyama Bamboo Grove

The Arashiyama Bamboo Grove on the west side of Kyoto is a beautiful forest of green. The path leads you through towering bamboo trees, which can be a breathtaking, and peaceful experience. The least crowded time to visit is early morning. There are shops and restaurants in the area around the grove, but in the summer, be prepared for the heat and humidity. This area of Kyoto is known for its natural beauty, as well as Togetsukyo Bridge and Tenryuji temple, a World Cultural Heritage site.

The grove is a 10-minute walk from Saga-Arashiyama Station on the JR Sagano Line.

JUkyo Ward, Kyoto, 616-0000, Japan

<https://www.japan.travel/en/spot/1141/>